elegance in Willoughby

This home renovation preserved and upcycled components of the original home to retain and evolve this sophisticated design. The result is a home with timeless elegance and historic feature pieces. The house's original Kauri floorboards were repurposed to create the island benchtop and bench in the laundry. The kitchen also featured American oak veneer internal joinery detailing with solid American oak door fronts. To further emphasize the Scandi style, hidden internal drawers were used within the larger drawers to maintain that simple and minimalist style from the front. 5mm stainless steel was used for the kitchen bench with a flush-mounted cooktop. The vanity unit was made with half dowel fronts that were hand painted. The detail of this design carried into the interior of the joinery where the same black colour was used.
